[Special to The Times-Dispatch,] Roanoke, Va., March 16.—John Scott, colored, little knows the value of dia-monds, as was demonstrated *everal days ago, when he sold a ring valued at $180 for 15 cents. The boy was employed on a milk wagon, and went to the home of H. H. Hall, on Churen Street, and found the ring in the kitchen, Mrs. Hall having taken it off while occupied with household duties. The ring was missed soon after the boy delivered the milk, and suspicion rested on him. He was arrested, and it later developed that he had sold the ring to an old colored woman for 15 cents. The woman did not realize the value of the stone either, and she testified the fact that she purchased it from the boy. The ring was recovered and the boy was sent to jall for sixty days. days ago, when he sold a ring valued
